

Bullish Chart Pattern Cheat Sheet

Six patterns swing traders study most. A pattern is a reason to watch, not a reason to buy: wait for the trigger, size the risk, and know where the idea is wrong.

Cup and handle

A rounded base, then a small, quiet pullback (the handle) near the old high.

Trigger: Price clears the handle high on rising volume.

Idea is wrong: Below the handle low.

Bull flag

A sharp rise (the pole), then a tight, orderly drift sideways on lighter volume.

Trigger: Price breaks above the top of the flag.

Idea is wrong: Below the flag low.

Ascending triangle

Flat resistance on top while each pullback holds a higher low.

Trigger: A close above the flat resistance.

Idea is wrong: Below the last higher low.

Flat base

After an advance, price rests in a narrow range for several weeks.

Trigger: Price clears the top of the range.

Idea is wrong: Below the base low.

Double bottom

Two lows at a similar level, the second one holding; buyers defend the zone.

Trigger: Price clears the middle peak.

Idea is wrong: Below the second low.

Pullback to rising average

In an uptrend, price dips to a rising moving average and holds it.

Trigger: A bounce candle that closes back up from the average.

Idea is wrong: Below the pullback low.

Dashed line = the level to watch. Red arrow = the trigger. Education only. HUMBLE BULLS does not sell stock picks, signals or advice, and nothing here is a recommendation to buy or sell any security. All numbers are illustrations. Trading involves risk, including loss of more than your planned amount through gaps and slippage.